Think of him faring on, as dear In the love of There, as the love of Here.

Think of him still as the same, I say He is not dead—he is just away.

In native land how splendid sleep The bravest of the brave, While we today proud vigil keep Around each patriot's grave.

Eternal winds and dirges sing And rains requiems play. Dawn light and dark forever spring Above our hallowed clay.

No more they heed the bugle's call Or thrill the cannonade. Silent the song in camp and hall And passed the last parade.

Lord God of Hosts, This prayer we ask:

To keep our torch as bright To hold their faith until the last With Freedom's holy light.

JURY FINDS BETHEL PAIR GUILTY

Mrs. Wentzell Sentenced to One to Two Years in Prison—MacMillan to Reformatory

The trial of Mrs. Mona Martin Wentzell and Frederick MacMillan of Bethel, charged with arson in connection with the burning of the Bethel Inn log cabin at "Devil's Kitchen" on the morning of Nov. 22, 1938, opened in the Superior Court at Rumford Thursday morning. After five prospective jurors had been challenged and one excused, the panel was completed with 11 jurors by agreement of counsel. Members of the jury were: Christopher Bryant, Locke Mills, Ivan Campbell, Andover, Roscoe Doughty, West Paris, Marie Faulkingham, Rumford, Frank Fitzgerald, Rumford, Grafton B. Gordon, Peru, V. C. Keene, Buckfield, Mary L. Stafford, Mexico, Mrs. Lester Tebbets, Locke Mills, Thelma Thomas, Mexico, Ralph Weeks, Roxbury.

The defense attorneys were E. Walker Abbott of South Paris and George A. Hutchins of Rumford. County Attorney Robert T. Smith represented the State.

The first witness was Emerson Stymiest, Rumford civil engineer, who identified the location of the road.

Guy L. Thurston, Bethel Inn grounds superintendent, stated that the burned cabin consisted of a large room, about 20x25 feet, containing two long tables, eight chairs and a sofa, and a fireplace. There was also a kitchen annex. There were no light fixtures. Mr. Thurston said on cross examination that the cabin had been broken into last July.

Fire Chief Lloyd E. Luxton described the fire damage and told of finding a partially burned door near the cabin with the latch filed.

Attorney Gerard S. Williams and Herbert R. Rowe of Bethel accompanied Deputy Sheriff Frank A. Hunt, also of Bethel, before daylight on the morning of the fire, in tracing the tracks of a man, woman and dog down the ski trail from the cabin. Mr. Williams identified a torchlight which he found under a pile of boards near the MacMillan camp.

Alfred Brown and Wilfred Baker of Bethel were first to arrive at the fire. They saw the reflection of fire before reaching Bethel on their return from work on the night shift at Locke Mills at 2.30. They remained at the scene of the fire about half an hour until the arrival of the fire department. They said that on their return to the village they met MacMillan and Mrs. Wentzell near Carver's garage and MacMillan inquired where the fire was. On learning the cabin was burned MacMillan turned the car around. Mr. Brown said that a dog was in the car.

Testimony of John King and Jack Gill also placed the MacMillan car in that vicinity about 3.30.

Mr. Williams and Ray Crockett spoke of a sound like the shot of a revolver from the direction of the MacMillan camp.

Mrs. Viola Lord, telephone operator, testified that for about eight years Mrs. Wentzell had been an operator in the Bethel exchange. She stated that on the morning after the fire Mrs. Wentzell called and asked if the fire alarm had sounded in the night and where the fire was. Answering a question of County Attorney Smith she said Mrs. Wentzell had told her that she carried a revolver.

Testimony of Joseph A. P. Flynn, State Insurance department investigator, Friday was largely a review of evidence submitted at the time of the hearing in Bethel early last week.

Dick Powell
Everyone's Happy

LISTEN TO THIS

By TOM FIZDALE

Everyone who knows him is very happy over Dick Powell's break in stepping into Al Jolson's spot on that Tuesday night show. Powell recently was voted by Hollywood news photographers "the most regular male star" and that good opinion extends to all of his acquaintances. The Arkansas boy who had never even seen a railroad train until he walked out of his home county, has gone far but has never lost an innate friendliness and wholesome quality of being himself.

Paderewski's fee for his recent guest appearance on Magic Key was reported to be approximately $10,000. "Now," commented First Nighter Les Tremayne on reading the news, "I understand what my mother meant when she said I'd be sorry if I didn't practice my piano lessons."

New romantic hero of Your Family and Mine is Raymond Johnson, latest Chicago emigrant of the drama tribe to New York.

Helen Hayes, luncheon with Joan Blaine recently, praised the ability of Actor Vincent Price. Two days later he joined Joan's Valiant Lady cast. It was recommendation enough.

Frances Langford is planning time off from her Star Theatre singing this summer to sail to Florida with husband Jon Hall to visit her family.

Patsy Kelly, Bob Hope's zany comedienne, gave her Dad a nice St. Patrick's day present. Sent him back to Ireland for his first visit in 35 years.

Bob Trout is sunning himself in California for three weeks after a swing around the country with Professor Quiz.

Zasu Pitts
Likes Realism

Zasu Pitts tells me that after four appearances with Fibber McGee and Company she feels like a member of the family.

Just between us, the o-so-simple "Millard" who badgers Gracie on the Burns and Allen show, is really Elliot Lewis, 22 year old law student who already holds two degrees.

Always a stickler for realism, even before the microphone, Phil Baker plays his Honolulu Bound program in New York's big Ambassador Theatre before an ocean backdrop, on a stage decked with palm trees and hibiscus blossoms. Sound effects are hidden behind a leafy screen in order not to detract from the realism.

Don't be surprised if NBC's veteran headliners, Amos 'n' Andy, are switched by their sponsor to the CBS network over which their Orson Welles show is heard.

Ozone Form of Oxygen

Ozone is a faintly blue, gaseous, allotropic form of oxygen, present in minute amounts in the atmosphere especially in the upper regions, and obtained (usually much diluted) by the silent discharge of electricity in ordinary oxygen or in air, and by other methods. It is so called from its peculiar odor, which is like that of weak chlorine. It has the molecular formula O_3 , being one and one-half times as dense as ordinary oxygen gas. It is a much more powerful oxidizer than oxygen gas, and comparatively unstable. It may be condensed to a deep-blue magnetic liquid boiling at 112 degrees centigrade. Ozone is used commercially for sterilizing water, purifying air, and bleaching.

Tallest of All Dogs

The Irish wolfhound is the tallest of all dogs. Really Irish, the dogs were most valued hunters in early centuries. Legend has it two ancient rulers of Ireland waged a mighty battle over a wolfhound. One of the kings offered 6,000 cows for him; the offer was refused. The dogs live up to the old proverb about them: "Gentle when stroked, fierce when provoked."

The SNAPSHOT GUILD PETS INDOORS

Above - Tag! Sunlight pouring into the kitchen makes this as easy as an outdoor picture. Note the interesting rhythm of the faucet shadows. 1/25 second at f.6.3 lens opening. By the addition of flood lights a snapshot could be made of this subject at f.11 or with a box type camera with lens at largest opening. At right - What'll I write

How many Snapshot Guild members have really good pictures of the family pets?—not just "pop shots" snapped hurriedly without much attention to idea or background, but pictures with expression and action that give a genuine key to the pet's character?

Pictures like this are well worth all the planning and patience they require and indoors is a good place to take them because it is so much easier to associate the pet with a "home" background that identifies it as a member of the family. Frequently humor can be obtained in these indoor pictures—a frolicsome kitten tangled up in a skein of yarn and looking baffled, or snatching at the dribble of water from a faucet; a puppy barking excitedly at a rubber mouse or—as here—thoughtfully planning a bit of letter-writing.

Pictures that present the animal in a definite mood or illuminate its character abound for the watchful photographer—the Scotty, like a little old man, his head cocked to one side and inquiry in his shaggy-browed eyes; the majestic Persian cat, dignified in repose, paws extended and chin sunk deep in the soft fur of his chest; the mournful-eyed bloodhound, the silken-coated collie with brown eyes sympathetic and thoughtful, the paddle-footed cocker spaniel pup almost lost between his enormous ears.

There is a delightful field here, too, for the photographer who likes to experiment with lighting effects. Consider, for example, the long-furred white cat posed on a window sill in silhouette, so that the outdoor light, diffused through the window curtains, surrounds him with a bright silken glow.

Indoor animal pictures can be made either with daylight or amateur flood bulbs. Super-sensitive film should be used, because of its extra speed. Where direct sunlight streams into a room and illuminates the subject, exposures can be almost as brief as outdoors. Where sunlight is diffused through curtains, it should be aided with amateur flood-lights.

At night, two big No. 2 amateur flood bulbs in reflectors four feet from the subject give enough light for snapshots with box cameras; the lens should be at its widest opening. With lenses marked in "f" numbers, f.11 at 1/25 second or f.6.3 at 1/50 second is about right. Dark-coated pets demand more light, or lights closer up. Portrait attachments can be used over the lens, for close-ups of small pets, without changing the exposure time.

It's all simple—so fire away.
John van Guilder.

Jaguar Will Run At home in jungles and on grassy plains from Texas to Paraguay, the jaguar is quite capable of killing a man, but does so only rarely. When chased by hunters, it will run rather than fight. But if cornered, it attacks fearlessly.

Clock Going Since 1496 One of the oldest clocks in the world is on the old clock tower of Venice, Italy. It has been ticking time since 1496. On its platform are two black giants, which have struck the hours 24 times every day, or nearly 4,000,000 times.

Peafowl Devour insects
Peafowl in addition to their beauty, have a certain amount of utility. They devour snails, frogs, toads and insects. As they are allowed a great amount of freedom, estates maintaining a trio seldom have any insect trouble. They are said to be better protection than the average watchdog. Alert to every sight and sound they will "holloa" at the unusual. Their call not only arouses the owner but frightens away the trespasser.

JURY FINDS BETHEL PAIR GUILTY

—Continued from Page One in December. He stated that according to MacMillan's story at that time the evening before the fire he went to a turkey raffle after supper and about 9 o'clock he and Mrs. Wentzell went to Rumford. There they went to a hotel for several drinks and later lunched at a restaurant. After 12 o'clock they started for Bethel and on the way stopped three times as MacMillan became ill. They saw the light of the fire in the sky as they entered Mayville. Reaching the village they found the fire station open and saw Brown and Baker, and then went to Mrs. Wentzell's home where he left his car and went home. Mrs. Wentzell's story corroborated that of MacMillan except that she said he remained at her home the rest of the night. Both denied having been in the vicinity of the cabin that night. Flynn said that MacMillan told him he had a camp on the Bethel Inn property and had received notice to remove it.

Mrs. Marjorie Freeman of Bethel identified the transcription of notes taken at the December investigation hearing. After her admission that there were omissions of words which she was not sure of, the copy was barred as evidence.

Mr. and Mrs. Delmar Morgan testified that they were aroused half an hour before the fire by MacMillan and Mrs. Wentzell, who bought gasoline. Mr. Morgan said that MacMillan warned him to keep quiet about the visit, and that when Mrs. Wentzell paid for the gasoline she furthered MacMillan's remarks with "or we'll fill you full of lead."

Pistols given up by the respondents were identified and testimony introduced showed that both had permits to carry concealed weapons.

Deputy Sheriff Hunt testified that he traced freshly made tracks in the snow, evidently made by a man, woman and dog, from a car parked near the MacMillan camp to a point near the cabin and return. Mr. Hunt identified a saw, file and chisel, which were said to have come from the MacMillan car.

Mr. Flynn said that from the testimony of Alfred Brown and Wilfred Baker it was evident that the blaze was started with gasoline. Other witnesses Friday were Robert Milton, turnkey at South Paris Jail, Leroy Hamlin and Perley Andrews of Bethel.

Katherine and Josephine MacMillan, sisters of Frederick MacMillan, said that they hiked to the cabin on the Sunday before the fire, accompanied by a dog, and identified pictures taken that day. They affirmed testimony of their sisters, Evelyn and Ethelyn MacMillan, to the effect that Mr. and Mrs. Delmar Morgan had visited their home, and Evelyn MacMillan said that Morgan offered her mother $25 "to get rid of Mr. Abbott."

Fred Clark and Augustus Littlehale testified that according to their records of snowfall no snow fell on Nov. 21.

Leslie Coburn, Inn employee, said that the cabin blinds were kept closed.

Miss Agnes Finlayson, Bethel Inn bookkeeper, and Miss Gertrude Johnson, waitress, testified that they hiked to the cabin on the Sunday before the blaze and gathered pine cones.

Mrs. Mary Brown testified as to the number of cars on the highway. Bernard Powers, owner of the "Line House," a beer parlor on Sunday River, testified that MacMillan aroused him on a Monday night, but Powers refused to sell him beer. The defense was unable to establish the exact date of the occurrence.

Others testifying were Fred McKenzie of Bethel and Rose Willette of Cascade, N. H.

After three hours deliberation the jury found the respondents guilty of arson Monday evening.

Early Tuesday morning a motion for a new trial on the grounds of insufficient evidence was denied. That afternoon another such motion was filed, based on alleged conversation between Roscoe Doughty, a juror, and Jack Gill, a witness. After a long conference Wednesday morning, the motion was withdrawn.

Bones of Saint Rest in

Cartagena's Old Chapel

Cartagena is one of the oldest cities on the Spanish Main. It is renowned as the home of Colombia's patron saint, San Pedro Claver, a godly man of early Colonial days who wore a crown of thorns, let insects bite him, and devoted much of his time to healing the wounds of slaves brought over from Africa, recalls a writer in the Chicago Tribune.

San Pedro lives in the monastery which still bears his name. His bones repose in a glass case upon the altar in the chapel. They are covered by a silver canopy, from the top of which his small looks down.

Captain Lawrence Washington, brother of George Washington, and siege to the port in 1741, but was unable to capture it.

The city was founded in 1533 and contains much of its old time scenic attractions. Magnificent domes and towers towers emphasize the skyline. There are many fortifications.

It is because of their former strength that the city was called "Little Cartago." These fortifications include the city, often with ramparts 30 feet high and from 40 to 100 feet thick. They aroused great envy and enmity in the minds of Sir Francis Drake and Sir Henry Morgan, who had to resort to many stratagems before being able to break through the circle. The forts were originally built to resist pirates and were the stoutest and most majestic on the Spanish Main.

The old mounds are dry and overgrown with jungle.

The hill which dominates the landscape is called "La Popa," from the summit of which outlooks scanned the seas for the sails of pirates. In a little shrine on this hill reposes an image of the Virgin Mary, to whom all Cartagenians used to pray for deliverance from the buccanniers.

Why People Are Untruthful
Liars are developed, not born, psychologists say. Nobody is born with a tendency to lie. Lying results from some sort of mental or emotional unbalance, asserts a writer in Pearson's London Weekly. People lie when they lack the courage to tell the truth. Inferiority complexes often make people lie to make themselves appear greater than they are. Others lie to make themselves succeed, only to find that it makes them less successful. This bad habit is acquired. It is not born with any of us. We are all born capable of becoming liars, but it is our own selves that allow the habit to develop.

Flashlight Enables Two Flyers To 'Crash' Their Plane and Escape

FORCED to land in a hayfield when a downdraft of cold air drove their plane close to earth, two young Minnesota aviators had a remarkable escape from death on a scheduled non-stop flight from Minneapolis to Miami.

They owe their lives to a flashlight which the pilot, A. C. McInnis, 23-year-old instructor at Minneapolis Municipal Airport, used as a landing flare to find a comparatively safe place to set his plane down.

McInnis and his friend took off not long after dark on what they had planned as a 1,550-mile non-stop flight. They expected to put their "flying gasoline tank" — as their craft was called because of its heavy fuel load — down in Miami the next day. The take-off was satisfactory, but the plane arose slowly. Fifteen miles from the airport it was in trouble.

"I followed the Minnesota River for a while after taking off," said McInnis, "hoping to gain altitude to clear the banks on either side. I had climbed to 425 feet when I swung southward toward Rochester."

"Then I hit a downdraft of cold air. We dropped at least 150 feet. I fought to climb, but couldn't. There was nothing left but to land — if possible. A good trick if we could do it, and in complete darkness, too.

"I switched on my flashlight and stuck it over the side. Its beam revealed a gully. I missed that. Flying with my left hand while I held the flashlight with my right, I set the plane down. It wasn't a perfect landing—the ship was damaged and we were knocked cold. But it was good enough to save our lives, and it was made possible by a lone flashlight, although one that had been made dependable by fresh batteries."

When McInnis and his friend regained consciousness, they walked a half mile to a shack where a woodcutter notified airport officials. McInnis, in a half-dazed condition when he arrived nearly an hour later at a hospital, was still clinging to his flashlight and even kept his grip on it as he walked into the operating room.

PUBLIC NOTICE STATE OF MAINE Registration and Licensing of Dogs (Revised Statutes, Chapter 5, As Amended)

Assessors of Taxes to Return Lists of Dogs to State Treasurer

Section 157. Assessors of taxes shall include in their inventories lists of all dogs owned by or in the possession of any inhabitant on the first day of April, setting the number and sex thereof opposite the names of their respective owners or persons in whose possession the same are found, and make a return to the treasurer of state of said lists and also of the number of dogs killed as required by section one hundred and sixty-two on or before the fifteenth day of June following; and if any city or town fails to return to the treasurer of state on or before September first of each year, a sum of money equal to the license required by this chapter, on all dogs living on the first day of June preceding, such deficiency shall be collected in the same manner as the state tax of such delinquent city or town for the following year.

Dogs to be Registered, Numbered, and Licensed

Section 158. 1937, c. 202, § 2. On or before the first day of April each year the owner or keeper of any dog six months old or over shall apply to the city or town clerk either orally or in writing for a license for each such dog owned or kept by him. Such application shall state the breed, sex, age, color, and markings of such dogs and the name and address of the last previous owner. A fee of $1 shall be paid the city or town clerk for each license issued on male dogs, and a fee of $5 shall be paid for all female dogs capable of bearing young. All female dogs shall be considered capable of producing young unless accompanied by a certificate from a licensed veterinarian stating that such female was made incapable of producing young by spaying by him. When such certificate accompanies the application a fee of $1 shall then be paid on such spayed females. In addition to the amount paid for license and metal tag each applicant shall pay the city or town clerk 15 cents for recording and making returns to the commissioner of agriculture. Such licenses shall be made in triplicate, the original copy shall be mailed to the commissioner of agriculture, 1 copy given the person applying for the license, and 1 copy retained by the city or town clerk. A metal tag showing the year such license is issued and bearing such other data as the commissioner of agriculture may prescribe shall be given with each license and must be securely attached to a leather or metal collar which must be worn at all times by the dog for which the license was issued and it shall be unlawful for any person to remove such tag or to place either collar or tag on any dog not described or for which the license was not issued. Returns showing all licenses issued by city or town clerks together with a correct report showing the total number of dogs in "both sexes" found by the city or town assessors shall be made to the commissioner of agriculture not later than the first day of May each year. All license blanks and metal tags shall be furnished by the commissioner of agriculture, and the expense for the same shall constitute a legal charge against monies received for dog licenses. Any person becoming the owner or keeper of a dog after the first day of April, not duly licensed as herein required, shall within ten days after he becomes the owner or keeper of said dog, cause said dog to be described and licensed as provided above. Every owner or keeper of dogs, kept for breeding purposes, may receive annually a special kennel license authorizing him to keep said dogs for said purpose, provided he keeps said dogs within a proper enclosure. When the number of dogs so kept does not exceed ten, the fee for such license shall be ten dollars and fifteen cents; when the number of dogs so kept exceeds ten, the fee for such license shall be twenty dollars and fifteen cents and no fees shall be required for the dogs of such owner or keeper under the age of six months. Dogs covered by kennel license shall be exempted from the provisions of this section requiring registration, numbering, and collaring.

Dog Licenses to be Issued by Town Clerk

Section 159. The clerks of cities and towns shall issue said license and receive the money therefor, and pay the same to the treasurer of their respective cities or towns within thirty days thereafter, retaining to their own use the sum of fifteen cents for each license so issued; and the said treasurer shall pay the money so received to the treasurer of state on or before September first of each year who shall credit the same to a fund called "Dog Licenses." Such clerks shall keep a record of all licenses issued by them, with the names of the owners or keepers of dogs licensed, and the sex, registered numbers, and description of all such dogs; provided, however, that the sex, registered number, and description shall not be required of dogs covered by a kennel license.

Treasurers to Keep Separate Accounts

Section 160. The treasurer of each city or town shall keep an accurate and separate account of all moneys received and expended by him under the provisions of the preceding section.

Penalty for Keeping Unlicensed Dog

Section 161. Whoever keeps a dog contrary to the provisions of this chapter shall forfeit ten dollars, five of which shall be paid to the complainant and five to the treasurer of the town in which the dog is kept, and in addition thereto shall pay the cost of prosecution. Warrants to be issued to officers to kill unlicensed dogs.

Section 162. The mayor of each city and the municipal officers of each town or plantation shall annually within ten days from the first day of May issue a warrant, returnable on the first day of June following, to one or more police officers or constables, directing them to proceed forthwith either to kill or cause to be killed all dogs within said city, town, or plantation not licensed, collared or enclosed according to the provisions of this chapter, and said constable or police officer shall or any other person may enter complaint against the owner or keeper thereof. On the first day of June the mayors of cities and the municipal officers of towns and plantations shall issue to one or more police officers or constables a warrant returnable on the first Monday of the following February, directing said police officers or constables to kill or cause to be killed forthwith any dog not licensed or collared according to the provisions of this chapter and to enter complaint against the owner or keeper hereof.

Officers Commanded to Kill Dogs to Make Return

Section 163. Each police officer or constable to whom the warrants named in the preceding section are issued shall return the same at the time specified and shall state in his return on each warrant the number of dogs killed, the names of the owners and keepers thereof, and whether all unlicensed dogs within his precinct, have been killed, and the names of persons against whom complaints have been made under the provisions of said section. Such officers shall receive from the city, town or plantation the sum of two dollars for each dog killed, and for such other services rendered under the provisions of this chapter, they shall receive such compensation as the municipal officers may determine.

Sec. 164. The secretary of state shall seasonably forward to the clerks of the several cities, towns, and plantations, copies of the seven preceding sections, and each clerk shall annually at least twenty days before the first day of April, post said copies in the usual places of posting notices of the annual municipal or town elections.

Celia Seems Dumb

By GLORIA SINCLAIR

© Assoc. Nat. Newspapers.
WNU Service.

CELIA DRAYTON'S coming to Dashedville was heralded by considerable excitement in what fondly believed itself the "younger set."

Dashedville was fast emerging from villagehood and was eminently city-conscious. Celia came from New York. All the girls were prepared for ultra-sophistication.

A few came over to her aunt's farm to see her the very first evening. They found a pretty, healthy girl with a markedly simple straightforward manner.

"Dumb, she seems to me," said Violet Ray, who was in normal school, was too thin and had no "steady" boy friend.

"I've come down here to play tennis, get some swimming in a really truly lake and run wild in the sunshine," laughed Celia to her aunt later. "I simply won't be inveigled into bridge parties or indoor waste of time. Yes, dearest aunt, you may give one dance for me, only I really want to live in the lake, excepting when I'm on the tennis courts."

"Evidently she can't play bridge. I guess she's not much of a dancer, either. And, gosh, that dress had no style at all. You might buy it anywhere. I thought from what Mrs. Webber said her niece was something marvelous."

"Darn good looking," said the boys, hoping their tennis would pass muster.

Mrs. Webber laughed. "Never mind, Celia," she said. "I want them to see you dance—that's why I'm giving a dance for you. They're all run silly with trying to be what they believe New York is. They are just babies with new toys. Your uncle can't stay in the room when Milly Batt tries to smoke. He says she looks just like 'Guendolyn the Tame Chimpanzee' who smoked at the last circus. I know you'll forgive them if they try to snub you. If they knew who you were they'd crawl at your feet."

"But all I want is for them to be kind and friendly," said Celia, stretching her well-molded arms. "I'm simply spilling for a swim."

"Did I tell you that Wyatt Fischer is coming tomorrow?" asked Mrs. Webber. "Well, he is. You know he is just through the Beaux Arts in Paris. He has been offered a position in his father's office in Philadelphia and we think he will go far."

"I knew him—a little—in New York," and Celia blushed slightly. "Well, he won't tell these good young people a word until we say he may—about anything," she said, vaguely.

"There isn't anything to tell," said Celia, "excepting that I am on the stage."

The farmhouse made a lovely setting for Mrs. Webber's dance. It was filled with fine old furniture and boasted wide rooms which had been recently floored with polished oak. Celia looked lovely in a simple pink dress that none but her aunt knew bore a Paris label.

The rooms were filled; some good jazz musicians gave their best. And in the middle of the evening young Wyatt walked in and smooched at Celia.

"So you're really back," was a she said.

"And with a real job," he replied meaningfully, as they glided out on the floor.

"Gosh, she can dance all right," said Violet, powdering her uncomely nose.

"I'll say she can. But she has no line," responded Mildred Batt, who was short-winded and clumsy.

"Line nothing! She's got 'it,'" declared Polly Dawson, a freshman at the state university, good looking and a first-class athlete.

After a delicious supper Mrs. Webber, who loved young people and knew how to make an evening happy, rose and, nodding to Celia, said:

"We have tonight been celebrating my little niece's engagement to Wyatt Fischer, whom you all know."

Consternation registered on almost all the girls' faces. "You will also like to hear that dear little Celia is 'Isolde' the dancer, whose picture I know you've seen in the rotogravure sections of your Sunday papers. She will be married from my home Tuesday next. Now, Celia, have you anything to say, dear?"

"Only that I do hope you will like me, for I am going to live here in the summertime. You see, Wyatt knows you all and I don't." The sweet, gentle voice went on: "I feel rather lost among you, for I am the only stranger."

Polly Dawson jumped up and ran to Celia and hugged her. "We'll be friends, for your service is fine and you can dance and you can swim."

Every one laughed, for all loved impulsive Polly. "And we won't give a darn for the cats," she whispered naughtily in Celia's ear.

THE OXFORD COUNTY UNITED PARISH NOTES

The Lovell Men's Club observed Ladies Night last Monday evening. The chefs in charge of the supper led off with a delicious oyster stew which complimented and almost obliterated the regular bean supper that had all the fixings. The speaker of the evening was Headmaster Elroy LaCasse, who gave an interesting and informing survey of the relations between the United States and Japan.

A group of young people in Lovell have started rehearsal on an Easter play.

Thursday evening Stoneham will hold its regular Circle Supper and their mid-Lenten Service. The preachers of the evening will be the Revs. Mr. and Mrs. Water Cook of Hebron.

The Outing Club will meet Thursday evening in North Waterford. Two fellowship suppers are scheduled for the coming week: on Friday, March 24th, in the Waterford Church; and on Tuesday, March 28th, in the North Waterford Church. Next Thursday night the Stoneham Church members will unite in their fellowship supper.

The fifth in the series of Lenten discussions sponsored by the Pilgrim Fellowship will be held in the North Waterford vestry Sunday evening at 7 o'clock. Rev. Willard Bicket will discuss with the young people the topic: "What I Believe About the Church."

CHRISTIAN SCIENCE SOCIETY
Sunday School at 10 o'clock. Services Sunday morning at 10:45. "Reality" is the subject of the Lesson-Sermon that will be read in all churches of Christ, Scientist, on Sunday, March 26.

The Golden Text is: "Whatsoever things are true, whatsoever things are honest, whatsoever things are pure, whatsoever things are lovely, whatsoever things are of good report; if there be any virtue, and if there be any praise, think on these things" (Philippians 4: 8).

The citations from the Bible include the following passages: "Praise ye the Lord. I will praise the Lord with my whole heart, in the assembly of the upright, and in the congregation. The works of his hands are verity and judgment; all his commandments are sure. They stand fast for ever and ever, and are done in truth and uprightness" (Psalms 111: 1, 7, 8).

The Lesson-Sermon also includes passages from the Christian Science textbook, "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures," by Mary Baker Eddy.

Testimonial meetings at 7:30 p. m. on the second Wednesday of each month until May.
